Community College Access Initiative

Justification for this initiative:

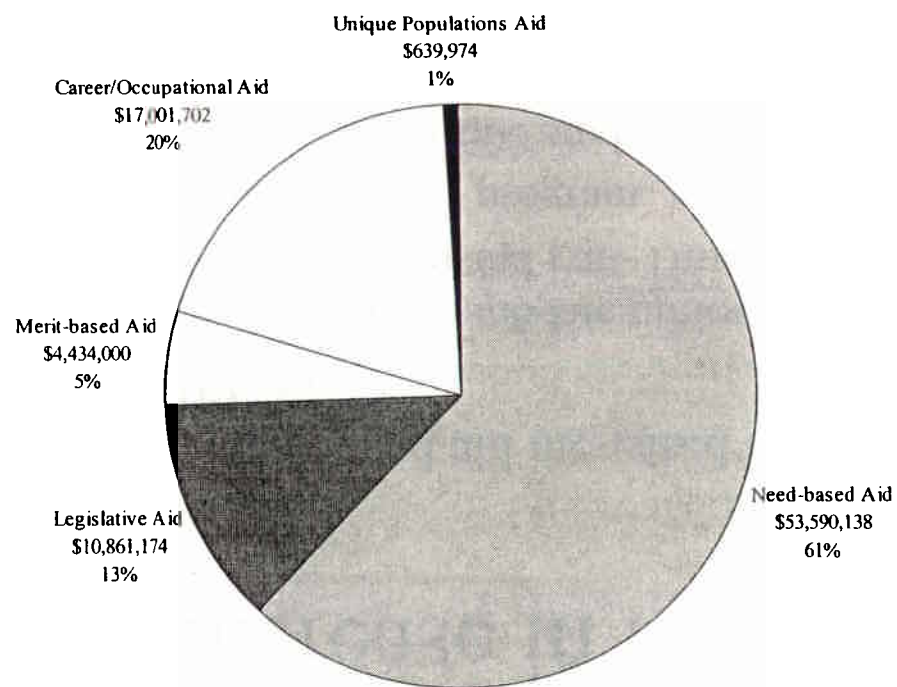

- Maryland's community colleges rank 11th nationally in tuition and fees
- State provides modest amount of need-based aid – ranked 23rd nationally
- Community colleges have limited institutional funds to assist students
 - Community Colleges – 7%
 - Public institutions – 31%
 - Private institutions – 75%
- Proportionally, community colleges receive much lower percent of EAG funds compared to percent of total enrollment

Segment	% EAG Funds	% Total Enrollment
Community College	8	30
Four-Year Public	70	53
Four-Year Independent	22	18

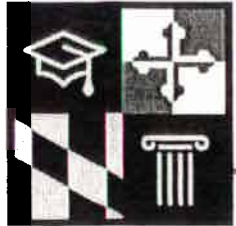

- Addresses the State's failing grade on Affordability

- Automation of OSFA's internal billing roster processing will be implemented in the near future to improve internal administration and the timeliness of award disbursements.
- Implemented new procedures to verify student income information for EA and GA Grant awards which increased the number of students verified by 42%.
- Developed a new version of award roster to identify changes made since the last update, the date of most recent activity, and the paid status of student's award making it easier for institutions to identify and package State awards for students.
- Support efficiencies in the administration of legislative scholarships by providing FAFSA report and applicant and recipient rosters on CD-Rom.
- Entered programming stage for on-line award acceptance to enable students to accept awards on-line eliminating the need for paper transactions – testing will take place in the near future.

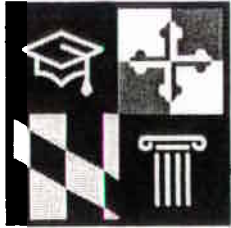

College Awareness and Outreach

- Greatly expanded outreach efforts by partnering with community colleges and four-year institutions to provide financial aid outreach presentations to students across Maryland – 181 presentations held in academic year 2003-2004, up from 144 in 2002-2003.
- Provided easier student access to financial aid information by placing all materials, including applications, on our website – 84% of program applications have been printed from the web and mailed in to OSFA.
